

Thursday, May 2 of 2013

DAILY MESSAGE OF CHRIST JESUS, TRANSMITTED TO THE VISIONARY FRIAR ELÍAS

Even though the path to go through may seem to be long and extensive, remember that you are walking for all of those who still do not take the steps towards Me.

Even though the time may seem to not change inside of you and the transformation is slow and painful, remember that you are being purified for those who live in grave faults.

Even though the tiredness, the sadness or the loneliness may seem to be greater than the desert of the Earth, remember that you are transforming and transcending yourself for those who really turned their backs to the love of God.

Even though all seems to not change and that you do not reach light, remember that you are crossing the dark night for all of those who do not live the life of the commandments.

Even though love still does not flourish in your being and you do not find humility, remember that you are consecrating yourself to a greater life for those who practice the false deceiving love that diverts souls through the pathway of illusion.

Even though dying to yourself may be a greater step than what your consciousness permits, remember that you are being sanctified for love to Me and for those who do not sanctify their essences for God, but that are led towards other things.

Even though you see life in ruins and the arid interior may dry the Water of Life and the devoted fire of your heart, remember that you are suffering silently for those who do not pray and who waste precious time in constant temptation.

Even though you still do not see My Light on the horizon, trust absolutely in Me because I Am at your side, guarding your little heart as a true treasure of purity and prayer.

Even though the world does not change, remember that I Am the Love of the Great Love, the Truth of the Great Infinite Truth, the Spirit of the Great Sanctified Spirit.

Seek Me! Call Me! Because I will listen to you. My arms are open to console you and to encourage you each day that you donate yourself a little more because in sacrifice you will find the key for you redemption.

Under the Imperishable Light of the Father, be blessed.

Thank you for meditating on My words with the heart!

Christ Jesus, now and always.