WEEKLY MESSAGE OF SAINT JOSEPH, TRANSMITTED AT CASA LUZ DA COLINA, CARMO DA CACHOEIRA, MINAS GERAIS, BRASIL, TO THE VISIONARY SISTER LUCÍA DE JESÚS

When souls gather in prayer, hoping to find God again, and in Him the answers to their deepest questions, there, children, God manifests Himself among them. Through the silent air, through the Breath of His Holy Spirit, He touches hearts and liberates them from their most deeply rooted sins, from their oldest errors.

Today I am here, responding to a Greater Will, to gather into My Heart the offering of the serving souls.

I am here to receive the fruits of lives of surrender from those who throughout their existence have aspired to the service of the Plan of God and His Higher Will, and who today, even with their limitations, continue living this surrender and will live it until their last breath.

The planet still lives in the law of duality, just like this universe. And this law requires balance so that souls continue to have the opportunity to evolve.

Therefore, children, service, sacrifice, self-giving and even suffering, when experienced with consciousness, are still instruments that balance the laws, that place upon the scales of the Divine Laws the merits to transform indifference, ignorance, lack of love and selfishness, which are great evils that keep humanity away from the Heart of God.

I tell you this so that you understand that life will always have its value. Your offerings will always have incalculable value before God, and even prostrate on a bed or with different physical, internal and spiritual limitations, whenever you make of your lives an offering to God, they will always be for the Father a reason for hope, for balance; they will always generate merits for the rescue of souls, even if no one sees them and if their surrender is deeply silent.

That is why I am here, so that you may remember that life never loses its value. It is sacred until your last breath, and will continue to be even more sacred when you know the universes that exist beyond the material dimension.

Today I come to thank the silent offering of the serving souls, of those who dedicate and will always dedicate their lives to God and to others, because it is through their souls that the Father finds the opportunity to continue renewing His Love and His Creation.

Receive My blessing and My peace.

Receive the gratitude that emanates from My Chaste Heart and that touches you so that you may rediscover the Purpose of living and serving silently.

You have My blessing for this.

Your father and friend,

The Most Chaste Saint Joseph
